COP 27 LWF Delegation Terms of reference

Call for nomination

I. Background

As a global communion of 149 Lutheran churches in 99 countries, with local roots and a global presence, the Lutheran World Federation (LWF) affirms the need to take urgent action to address the climate crisis.

The Lutheran World Federation is committed to strengthening efforts for climate justice. People socially and economically disadvantaged and marginalized are disproportionately affected by climate change. Climate change and inequality are locked in a vicious cycle, whereby climate change hazards end up aggravating inequality. We advocate for common but differentiated climate action at all levels, from individual behavioral changes to high-level political decision-making processes.

Lutheran churches contribute to climate adaptation and mitigation among the most vulnerable at the local and national level. As a communion of churches, our engagement is rooted in the spiritual and theological perspectives of the Lutheran tradition. Our faith motivates us to cultivate an ecological sense of being human and a vocation to care for the well-being of all creation.

LWF has issued substantive statements on climate justice and resources promoting faithful earth keeping since 1977. Most recently, the LWF announced fossil fuel divestment in 2015, supported the Statement of Faith and Spiritual Leaders at the Paris Climate Summit, and, passed a resolution on climate change at the 2017 Assembly of the LWF, calling member churches to engage more deeply in addressing the impacts of climate change. The LWF advocates for a development model that addresses the global economic inequalities and builds community resilience to climate change. Inequality reduction can help to contain the adverse effects of climate change. Since 2011, Youth have led our COP delegations and they are leading climate justice projects all over the world, focusing on the importance of taking care of the creation, intergenerational justice, how to participate in climate national processes like National Determined Contributions - NDC, promoting reforestation in their own communities and gathering ideas for climate justice engagement on carbon neutrality.

II. LWF Youth Delegation at COP27

The COP 27 will take place in Sharm El Sheikh, Egypt from 06-18 November, see <https://cop27.eg/> with a great likelihood of a hybrid format including online participation as well as in-person participation, and more information will be provided on the arrangements for and format of the conference in the coming weeks.

LWF is calling for youth nominations from all regions to participate at UNFCCC negotiations at COP 27. There must be a gender balance of at least 40%. LWF youth delegation will be selected from the nominees based on both the format of the conference and the number of spots available to the LWF.

The nominated youth will play a key role in shaping the LWF's engagement with COP 27 – ranging from national level advocacy to global mobilization.

Not all nominated candidates will be able to participate directly in the COP 27 as members of the LWF delegation. However, all youth nominated will have the opportunity to participate in workshops this Autumn centered around the relevant topics of the UNFCCC negotiations, the current state of climate justice, and networking with peers.

a. Goals of LWF COP 27 Delegation

The aims of this event are to act meaningfully for climate justice as people of faith and to strengthen youth leadership across the LWF. Strengthening youth leadership will happen in a few ways: (1) relationships among youth in the LWF will be strengthened through mentoring relationships between youth who have been to the event and youth who have not, (2) the LWF will invest in skill building and leadership development of individual delegates and will follow up about the resulting impact on their Member Church, and (3) the delegation will develop a devotional resource for use in Member Churches – putting youth leadership of the important issue front and center in LWF communications during and following the event.

b. Composition of LWF youth delegation at COP

The delegation will be made up of youth (18-30 years old) representatives from LWF member churches, preferably with some understanding and previous experience on climate justice.

All LWF Member Churches are eligible to nominate one youth delegate. Nomination endorsement should be from the leadership of the LWF member church.

Youth delegates are defined as representatives of the LWF as a collective rather than representing their own church

c. Expectations of LWF Youth Delegates

Youth delegates actively participate in the pre-planning of the delegation activities and in conversations around main themes and methodologies for engagement. All delegates are committed to engage in dialogue within the delegation itself, despite differences, and are committed to creating a safe space where all delegates can be heard and respected.

LWF youth delegates at COP are committed to the following values:

- Mutual respect
- Transparency
- Confidentiality
- Preparedness and responsiveness
- Flexibility and openness

Delegates also commit to:

- Ensuring a safe space within the delegation, not to share information about the work of other delegates (from other Civil society organizations, faith-based organizations or official delegates), indiscreetly. This is particularly important as some delegates might be working under adverse circumstances of shrinking space and we need to aim to keep each other safe.
- Not undermine the positions in the oral or written statements.

III. Specific Activities undertaken by LWF youth delegation members

Before COP27

- Familiarize yourself with the latest LWF resolutions on Climate Justice (see: <https://www.lutheranworld.org/climate-justice/resolutions-statements-climate> , previous engagements and the key advocacy messages.
- When relevant and possible, communicate directly with your country delegation. Inform them of activities, plans and offer expertise to the country delegation.
- Share relevant resources and knowledge within the LWF Youth delegation specifically if your church already developed materials related to climate justice.
- Participate in the online training organizing by LWF (more details will come later), engage in preparatory meetings with the delegation, including supporting preparations for activities that will take place in Egypt and online.
- When relevant and possible, engage with civil society in your context and region and make networks and alliances and collaborations in preparation.
- Be present and contribute to an orientation session prior to COP27 (at least 2 hours but possibly more)
- Read relevant information and dedicate time to preparation by engaging with the following:
 - o The UNFCCC website <https://unfccc.int/>
 - o Host country website: <https://cop27.eg/>
 - o The Presidency programme <https://cop27.eg/en/Conference#presidency-programme>
 - o The Paris Agreement <https://unfccc.int/process-and-meetings/the-paris-agreement/the-paris-agreement>
 - o LWF web site <https://www.lutheranworld.org/climate-justice>

During COP27 (Participation, time, communication)

- Reflect on your spiritual commitment to climate justice and participate in daily devotionals
- Engage in the external communication work, including preparing short videos with your main messages about engaging at COP27, writing a small blog telling other youth about your experience and participation.
- Participate in delegation meetings daily and contribute daily to internal communications, including sharing your notes from the sessions in which you participate. It is particularly useful to share information between the LWF delegations as it allows us to complement each other, attend different sessions, and share knowledge from sessions.

- Network and engage in dialogue with other strategic partners.
- Contribute to identifying key Side and Parallel Events. When relevant, engage by asking questions or talk directly with panelists and introduce yourselves under the LWF Youth delegation when you do so.

After COP27 (Blog writing, video creation, ongoing involvement and leadership)

- Report back to the LWF through a short-written report
- Report back to your church about your participation in COP27.
- Identify how you will continue your engagement in climate justice advocacy

Deadline for nominations: 15 August, 2022. Nomination form including the endorsement letter must be sent by email to action.justice@lutheranworld.org under the subject LWF Youth delegation to COP27
